

Progression of Knowledge and Skills: History

1. This is the overarching substantive knowledge and that underpins all of the history learning.

Substantive Knowledge
Topic Knowledge	Chronological Awareness	Substantive (abstract) concepts
Gaining a rich knowledge of the current topic, time period, society or event being studied. This knowledge is not included on the progression document because it is not always progressive. It is, however, important in widening pupils' Chronological awareness and understanding of Substantive (abstract) concepts.	Understanding language related to chronology. Building a mental timeline of the chronological order of periods. Developing awareness of general features of periods. Knowing particular dates and events.	Power (monarchy, government and empire) Invasion, settlement and migration Civilisation (social and cultural) Tax and trade Beliefs Achievements and follies of mankind

2. Topic knowledge, understanding chronology and abstract concepts are then subject to disciplinary procedures.

This means that the 'facts and figures' of history are subject to 'doing' history using enquiries and questioning.

Disciplinary Knowledge
Historical Enquiry	Disciplinary Concepts
Change and continuity Similarities and differences Cause and consequence Historical significance Sources of evidence Historical interpretations	Posing a historical question Gathering, organising and evaluating evidence Interpreting findings, analysing and making connections Evaluating and drawing conclusions Communicating findings

3. Finally, we arrive at the units of history that are studied.

Each of these units contains the 5 substantive and disciplinary skills, as explained above.

Units are split into British history (KS2 only) and both local and world history (KS1 and KS2)

Historical Enquiry

	Years 1/2	Years 3/4	Years 5/6
Posing historical questions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> -Asking questions about sources of evidence (e.g. artefacts). -Asking a range of questions about stories, events and people. -Understanding the importance of historically-valid questions. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> -Understanding how historical enquiry questions are structured. -Creating historically-valid questions across a range of time periods, cultures and groups of people. -Asking questions about the main features of everyday life in periods studied, e.g. how did people live. -Creating questions for different types of historical enquiry. -Asking questions about the bias of historical evidence. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> -Planning a historical enquiry. -Suggesting the evidence needed to carry out the enquiry. -Identifying methods to use to carry out the research. -Asking historical questions of increasing difficulty e.g. who governed, how and with what results? -Creating a hypothesis to base an enquiry on. -Asking questions about the interpretations, viewpoints and perspectives held by others.
Gathering, organising and evaluating evidence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> -Understanding how we use books and sources to find out about the past. -Using a source to answer questions about the past. -Evaluating the usefulness of sources to a historical enquiry. -Selecting information from a source to answer a question. -Identifying a primary source. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> -Using a range of sources to construct knowledge of the past. -Defining the terms 'source' and 'evidence'. -Extracting the appropriate information from a historical source. -Selecting and recording relevant information from a range of sources to answer a question. -Identifying primary and secondary sources. -Identifying the bias of a source. -Comparing and contrasting different historical sources. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> -Using different sources to make and substantiate historical claims. -Developing an awareness of the variety of historical evidence in different periods of time. -Distinguishing between fact and opinion. -Recognising 'gaps' in evidence. -Identifying how sources with different perspectives can be used in a historical enquiry. -Using a range of different historical evidence to dispute the ideas, claims or perspectives of others. -Considering a range of factors when discussing the reliability of sources, e.g. audience, purpose, accuracy, the creators of the source.
Interpreting findings, analysing and making connections	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> -Interpreting evidence by making simple deductions . -Making simple inferences and deductions from sources of evidence. -Describing the main features of concrete evidence of the past or historical evidence (e.g. pictures, artefacts and buildings). -Making links and connections across a unit of study. -Selecting and using sections of sources to illustrate and support answers. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> -Understanding that there are different ways to interpret evidence. -Interpreting evidence in different ways. -Understanding and making deductions from documentary as well as concrete evidence e.g. pictures and artefacts. -Making links and connections across a period of time, cultures or groups. -Asking the question "How do we know?" 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> -Interpreting evidence in different ways using evidence to substantiate statements. -Making increasingly complex interpretations using more than one source of evidence. -Challenging existing interpretations of the past using interpretations of evidence. -Making connections, drawing contrasts and analysing within a period and across time. -Beginning to interpret simple statistical sources.
Evaluating and drawing conclusions	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> -Making simple conclusions about a question using evidence to support. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> -Understanding that there may be multiple conclusions to a historical enquiry question. -Reaching conclusions that are substantiated by historical evidence. -Recognising similarities and differences between past events and today. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> -Reaching conclusions which are increasingly complex and substantiated by a range of sources. -Evaluating conclusions and identifying ways to improve conclusions.
Communicating findings	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> -Communicating answers to questions in a variety of ways, including discussion, drama and writing (labelling, simple recount). -Using relevant vocabulary in answers. -Describing past events and people by drawing or writing. -Expressing a personal response to a historical story or event through discussion, drawing our writing. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> -Communicating knowledge and understanding through discussion, debates, drama, art and writing. -Constructing answers using evidence to substantiate findings. -Identifying weaknesses in historical accounts and arguments. -Creating a simple imaginative reconstruction of a past event using the evidence available to draw, model, dramatise, write or retell the story. -Creating a structured response or narrative to answer a historical enquiry. -Describing past events orally or in writing, recognising similarities and differences with today. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> -Communicating knowledge and understanding in an increasingly diverse number of ways, including discussion, debates, drama, art, writing, blog posts and podcasts. -Showing written and oral evidence of continuity and change as well as indicting simple causation. -Using historical evidence to create an imaginative reconstruction exploring the feelings of people from the time. -Constructing structured and organised accounts using historical terms and relevant historical information from a range of sources. -Constructing explanations for past events using cause and effect. -Using evidence to support and illustrate claims.

Disciplinary Concepts

	Years 1/2	Years 3/4	Years 5/6
Change and continuity	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> -Being aware that some things have changed and some have stayed the same in their own lives. -Describing simple changes and ideas/objects that remain the same. -Understanding that some things change while other items remain the same and some are new. -Recognising some things which have changed/stayed the same as the past. -Identifying simple reasons for changes. -To know that people change as they grow older. -To know that throughout someone's lifetime, some things will change and some things will stay the same. -To know that everyday objects have changed over time. -To know that daily life has changed over time but that there are some similarities to life today. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> -Identifying reasons for change and reasons for continuities. -Identifying what the situation was like before the change occurred. -Comparing different periods of history and identifying changes and continuity. -Describing the changes and continuity between different periods of history. -Identifying the links between different societies. -To know that change can be brought about by advancements in transport and travel. -To know that change can be brought about by advancements in materials. -To know that change can be brought about by advancements in trade. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> -Making links between events and changes within and across different time periods / societies. -Identifying the reasons for changes and continuity. -Describing the links between main events, similarities and changes within and across different periods/studied. -Describing the links between different societies. -Explaining the reasons for changes and continuity using the vocabulary and terms of the period as well. -Analysing and presenting the reasons for changes and continuity. -To know that change can be brought about by conflict. -To know that change can be traced using the census.
Cause and consequence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> -Asking questions about why people did things, why events happened and what happened as a result. -Recognising why people did things, why events happened and what happened as a result. -To know that everyday objects have changed as new materials have been invented. -To know that changes may come about because of improvements in technology. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> -Identifying the consequences of events and the actions of people. -Identifying reasons for historical events, situations and changes. -To know that the actions of people can be the cause of change (eg. Lord Shaftesbury). -To know that advancements in science and technology can be the cause of change. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> -Giving reasons for historical events, the results of historical events, situations and changes. -Starting to analyse and explain the reasons for, and results of historical events, situations and change. -To know that members of society standing up for their rights can be the cause of change.
Similarities and differences	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> -Beginning to look for similarities and differences over time in their own lives. -Identifying similarities and difference between ways of life at different times. -Finding out about people, events and beliefs in society. -Making comparisons with their own lives. -To know that there are similarities and differences between their lives today and their lives in the past. -To know some similarities and differences between the past and their own lives. -To know that people celebrate special events in different ways. -To know that everyday objects have similarities and differences with those used for the same purpose in the past -To know that there are explanations for similarities and differences between children's lives now and in the past. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> -Identifying similarities and differences between periods of history. -Explaining similarities and differences between daily lives of people in the past and today. -Identifying similarities and differences between social, cultural, religious and ethnic diversity in Britain and the wider world. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> -Describing similarities and differences between social, cultural, religious and ethnic diversity in Britain and the wider world. -Making links with different time periods studied. -Describing change throughout time.
Historical Significance	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> -Recalling special events in their own lives. -Discussing who was important in a historical event. -To know that some people and events are considered more 'special' or significant than others. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> -Recalling some important people and events. -Identifying who is important in historical sources and accounts. -To know that significant archaeological findings are those which change how we see the past. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> -Identifying significant people and events across different time periods. -Comparing significant people and events across different time periods. -Explain the significance of events, people and developments.

	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> -To know that some events are more significant than others. -To know the impact of a historical event on society. -To know that 'historically significant' people are those who changed many people's lives. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> -To know that 'historically significant' events are those which changed many people's lives and had an impact for many years to come. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> -To know how historians select criteria for significance and that this changes.
Sources of evidence	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> -Using artefacts, photographs and visits to museums to ask and answer questions about the past. -Making simple observations about a source or artefact. -Using sources to show an understanding of historical concepts (see above). -Identifying a primary source. -To know that photographs can tell us about the past. -To know that we can find out about the past by asking people who were there. -To know that artefacts can tell us about the past. -To know that we remember some (but not all) of the events that we have lived through. -To know that we can find out about how places have changed by looking at maps. -To know that historians use evidence from sources to find out more about the past. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> -Using a range of sources to find out about a period. -Using evidence to build up a picture of a past event. -Observing the small details when using artefacts and pictures. -Identifying sources which are influenced by the personal beliefs of the author. -To know that archaeological evidence can be used to find out about the past. -To know that we can make inferences and deductions using images from the past. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> -Recognising primary and secondary sources. -Using a range of sources to find out about a particular aspect of the past. -Identifying bias in a source and identifying the value of the sources to historical enquiry and the limitations of sources. -Describing how secondary sources are influenced by the beliefs, cultures and time of the author. -To know that a census is carried out every ten years and is an official survey of the population which records every person living in a household on a specific date. -To understand the types of information that can be extracted from the census. -To understand that inventories are useful sources of evidence to find out about people from the past. -To understand some of the key terms on the census, for example, scholar, ditto, occupation and marital status. -To understand how to compare different census extracts by analysing the entries in individual columns. -To know that the most reliable sources are primary sources which were created for official purposes.
Historical interpretations	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> -Recognising different ways in which the past is represented (including eye-witness accounts). -Comparing pictures or photographs of people or events in the past. -Developing their own interpretations from artefacts, photographs and written sources. -To know that the past can be represented in photographs. -To know that the past is represented in different ways. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> -Identifying and giving reasons for different ways in which the past is represented. -Identifying the differences between different sources and giving reasons for the ways in which the past is represented. -Exploring different representations from the period e.g. archaeological evidence, museum evidence, cartoons and books. -Evaluating the usefulness of different sources. -To know that archaeological evidence has limitations: it does not give all the answers or tell us about the emotions of people from the past. -To know that assumptions made by historians can change in the light of new evidence. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> -Comparing accounts of events from different sources. -Suggesting explanations for different versions of events. -Evaluating the usefulness of historical sources. -Identifying how conclusions have been arrived at by linking sources. -Developing strategies for checking the accuracy of evidence. -Addressing and devising historically valid questions. -Understanding that different evidence creates different conclusions. -Evaluating the interpretations made by historians. -To know that we must consider a source's audience, purpose, creator and accuracy to determine if it is a reliable source. -To understand that there are different interpretations of historical figures and events.
